

CLASSES START OFF BRISKLY AT NEW Y. BUILDING

Following immediately upon the great opening week at the Young Women's Christian Association is the organization of second term classes in the educational department. Classes in stenography and in English for foreign women were organized Monday night, but it is expected that there will be many additional registrations for these classes this week, as well as for business English in which a class will be organized next Monday evening.

Three classes, which should be popular, met for the first time last evening. These are millinery, Spanish and singing. Millinery is being taught by Miss Jeanette Matthews and Miss Grace Dougan, the head milliners. The Spanish will be taught by Senor Pedro Alonso Martinez.

The glee club will be under the direction of Miss Edith Gattfield, whose musical reputation in Honolulu is well established. The week include sewing, cooking and typewriting. Miss Annetta Dieckmann, the educational secretary, announces that classes other than those now scheduled will be organized as the demand warrants. Requests for a day-time class in English for foreign women are being considered. It is probable also that a Friday afternoon class in cooking will be organized for school girls.

Capt. Weeden resigned from command of the Manoa, at the Matson line's request, according to authentic reports here and in San Francisco. Some time ago the local Matson agents made a formal announcement that Capt. Weeden had resigned permanently from the employ of the Matson Navigation Company.

An important piece of litigation, which took two Honolulu attorneys to Washington last month, was settled by the supreme court day before yesterday, and as a result, when A. A. Wilder arrived on the Great Northern this morning he was met with the good news that the opinion had been favorable to his arguments and his client, the Cornwell Ranch of Maui. The case is that of Henry Hapai vs. the Cornwell Ranch, and involves title to the cream of the ranch lands. It was argued before the supreme court recently with Judge Wilder representing the ranch company and Loren Andrews representing Hapai. When Wilder arrived today, his law partner, Judge W. L. Stanley, broke the good news that the case had been settled in their favor.

SPOKANE METHOD OF GOING AFTER TOURISTS TOLD

a better and greater Honolulu. That's advertising the islands and it's doing it in the right way.

"I'll wager there is not a man here who thinks only of his own, immediate, selfish interests when he works for and with this Ad Club. You give your time, energy and means working for Honolulu and for your territory. When you do that you are advertising the islands in the best way possible. You show in the world that you have faith. If you don't have faith and show it how in the world could you expect strangers to have it? Your desire to work for your city, to speak well of it and to improve it in every way is advertising. Don't forget that. The satisfied, contented citizen bears the same relation to a city that the satisfied customer bears to a business institution. He is the best ad known.

"So my advice to you is, stay with it and keep on working for your Ad Club, which is one of the best mediums I know of for uniting the people of a community.

"While I am convinced that every county and city must have the goods before it commences to tell the world about them, still the matter of letting people know you have something that will be good for them is a very important part of city building.

"When a city has something good, I believe in speaking right up and telling the world about it, and Honolulu certainly has the goods, from what I have seen so far. First, be convinced that your town is the best on earth for you, and then advertise. Some Cities 'Dead Ones.'

"When a city has a story to tell, tell it. If it is the truth people will say it is a great city—also that it knows how to advertise. If the city with a real good story does not tell it, that city of course will be classed with all the other dead ones.

"Extreme modesty on a city's part is just as bad as a superabundance of diffidence on the part of a man applying for a job. The city with the ability to tell forcefully and honestly what it has, gets there, just as the man who is able to speak up gets the job.

"Advertising has taken a great many different forms of late years. Some tell concrete stories in the magazines and newspapers of the country. That is a very effective way, and one productive of splendid results for the Spokane Chamber of Commerce.

"Others give annual festivals, such as the Seattle Pow Wow, Portland Rose Festival, and your own Mid-Winter Carnival. Of course, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco in 1915 was in a way advertising on a large scale.

"Years ago the Spokane Chamber adopted the slogan, 'Take care of the surrounding country and this city will then take care of itself.' That idea has been lived up to. Spokane's publicity has been founded on that broad principle of placing the entire Inland Empire and its advantages before the world. Not a day passes but our publicity department sends articles to hundreds of the leading publications of America, telling of some new development or opportunity of this or that town or district of the Inland Empire, and I am pleased to note that Honolulu boosts the attractions of the other islands.

"Here in this richly endowed country of yours you have every reason to be boosters, every reason to advertise. All you need is a little more cooperation between individuals, between the islands, between districts, and in a few years you will be able to tell the world with a straight face and a clear conscience: This is the only perfect place for mortals."

Denver Post Man Heard.

"I dreamed of green mountains, of flowers, white fleecy clouds, peaceful valleys, a home of love and joy, and I found that my dream had come true," said F. G. Bonfils, one of the owners of the Denver Post, in a talk today at the Ad Club luncheon at the Young Hotel, which was one of the best luncheons that has been given at the Ad Club in some time. "It came from the cold and the snow of the Rocky Mountains to Los Angeles and to the broad Pacific, and I saw nothing of the beautiful islands until I reached Hawaii. I know now why Hawaii has been called the 'Paradise of the Pacific.' It is truly named, and, gentlemen, I would urge you to keep Paradise of the Pacific constantly before the public. It is a slogan that is real. You who live here can certify to that statement.

"Hawaii is infinitely more beautiful than the Riviera or any of the countries bordering on the Mediterranean. You have a paradise that should be advertised more, and those who spent their time in the cold countries during the winter would appreciate the beauties of Hawaii. Keep hammering at the beauties that you have in Hawaii and the results will be attained.

"Service counts in everything. This is the foundation of success not only on the mainland but in Hawaii. Give the people of the world who come here what they want. Make it comfortable for your tourists. Make it easy for them to come here. Have them enjoy their visits, and they will come again. Service is the keynote of the whole situation.

"I must confess that I hold all records for poor seamanship, but it is worth a travel around the world to a poor seaman to see Kilauea. Vesuvius does not begin to compare with the fearsome wonderful sight of your great volcano on Hawaii. It is one of the greatest sights in all the world, and should be on every tourist's itinerary.

"Gentlemen, I would suggest that you tell your story of Hawaii often. Keep at it. Hammer it in, and don't forget it. Hot Springs, Ark., has been made a great tourist center because they have eternally kept after it. They have advertised, and the people of the mainland should know, and have a right to know of what you have here in Hawaii," concluded Mr. Bonfils.

J. Abrahamson of Oakland told of the progress of boosting in Oakland and urged the local clubs to show a get-together spirit in all civic affairs.

Dinkelspiel was the big event in the entertainment line at the luncheon. William H. Hutton was the German professor and his class handled the song with a vim. "The Wagon Road Tannen Baum," and other features were there, with a picture of the Great Northern, the Denver Post and a Spokane man.

J. Blumlein of San Francisco, who was a guest at the luncheon today, started the members of the club when he said, "Don't advertise too much. If you do you will have Mr. Bonfils coming here to start a newspaper. Mr. Paine will move to Hawaii and build a railroad parallel to the Oahu road. This won't do. What you want to advertise is that you are looking for the big men of the world to come here—but only to visit."

What Club Stands For.

In answering a question as to what the Ad Club stood for President Wallace R. Farrington stated that the club stood for boosting Honolulu, Hawaii, and the United States in order named, and that the spirit of the members is in favor of boosting the good things and going after the bad ones.

It was reported that the good roads committee had worked out the proposition of a street sweeper and that the board of supervisors had sanctioned the purchase of a $5000 machine to clean the streets of the city. John Martin suggested that the Ad Club send a card of appreciation to Mrs. Sereno E. Bishop of this city, who was one of the friends of the club. President Farrington appointed Mr. Martin a committee of one to transfer to Mrs. Bishop the kind wishes of the Ad Club on her 90th birthday anniversary today.

ROAD GANG WORKING TO MAKE TEMPORARY FILL NEAR KAAAWA

"Four or five days will elapse before we can have the Kaaawa section of road passable again," said George M. Collins, city engineer today. This is one of the stretches of road that was washed out by the high seas during the recent heavy storm.

Other sections—Punaluu, Kahana and Kala o ka Olo—have been filled in temporarily, and are now passable. Much damage has been done to the road, and considerable expenditure of money will be necessary to put it back into good shape. Men are hard at work now on the Kaaawa stretch to get it ready for traffic.
